Information

The McLay 585 is a practical alloy fishing boat that offers a good balance of deck space, cabin shelter, and easy towing in a mid-size trailer boat package.

Powered by a Mercury Optimax 175, you've got plenty of V6 power on hand along with efficient running for longer days on the water. It's a combination that works well for covering ground when needed while still keeping running costs sensible.

The layout is straightforward and usable, with a good amount of cockpit space for fishing and a cabin that provides shelter when the weather turns. With a canopy and clears fitted, it gives you flexibility depending on conditions.

This is a tidy, well-balanced package that would suit someone wanting a capable and affordable fishing boat that's easy to tow, launch and use.
